There once was an old farmer. He was a *1hardworking man, so every year his *2harvest was very great.

One day, he became sick. He knew he would die soon. ① He wanted his two sons to look after the *3 farm. "Long ago," he told them, "I put a great *4 treasure in one of the *5 vineyards."

After the farmer died, the sons began to *6 dig carefully around the *7 vines. Every day, they got up early and worked until night. "We have to dig and find the treasure!" they said.

The two sons *8 dug all summer, ② _____ they didn't find the treasure. They were tired and sad. They sat down near the fields and talked one day.

3 "Maybe our father was only dreaming," said the oldest son. The youngest son was looking at the vineyards. The vines were full of big, *9 juicy grapes. Suddenly, he understood. "Brother, this great harvest is our treasure!"

The older brother looked at the vines. "4 _____ Our father has taught us a wonderful lesson. Hard work brings great *10 rewards"

【6】次の英文を読んで、後の問いに答えなさい。

"Is this your son?" the police officer asked my mother. It was 11:00 p.m. I was standing outside the front door of my parents' house. The police officer was holding my arm *1tightly.

My mother *2 sighed. I thought she wanted to say 'no.' She looked at me *3 sadly. "Yes, that's my son, Tim. What has he done this time?"

"We found him outside the Porter's house on *4Simpson Road. He was wearing this bear mask and playing this *5cassette of bear sounds."

My mother looked at the bear mask, my *6 walkman with its speaker, and me. Once again, she sighed.

"Mr. Porter heard the noise, saw the bear and called us. It was lucky that he didn't try to *7 shoot your son."

"I'm so sorry, Officer. My husband and I will talk to Tim. I *8 promise you that he won't *9 get into trouble again."

The door closed. My mother looked at me. I was *10 suddenly very afraid.

"Mom, it was just a *11 joke! I thought Mike was in the living room, not his father! I didn't know he'd call the police!"

"Tim, that's enough! How many times have the police brought you home this year?"

"Umm... twice?"

"Three times! And each time you said, 'It was just a joke!'"

I looked down at the floor.

"You need to grow up. You have too much free time. When I was your age, I worked every summer."

"Yeah, but you lived on a *12 farm."

"That's right, I did. Humm... that's a good idea. I'll call Uncle Roger tomorrow. You can help him on his farm this summer. He'll teach you how to work."

"But, Mom...." My face became white. I couldn't talk. This was bad news, very bad. Uncle Roger was about 65 years old. He lived alone in *13 Southport, a small village. There was nothing to do at his house. He didn't have a computer, a DVD player or a *14 VCR. He didn't even have his own *15 private telephone line, only a *16 party line.

"What about my *17 camping trip this summer? I...."

"Your plans have ①change, Tim! If Uncle Roger says okey, we'll take you to Southport on Saturday."

Saturday?? ② I was in shock. Me, work all summer? This was going to be my worst summer ever!
